Interstate Industrial Park receives AdvantageSite designation

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., November 22— Interstate Industrial Park has received an AdvantageSite designation. The park is located along I-65 in Montgomery.

The AdvantageSite program requires that community economic development organizations provide documentation specific to a proposed industrial site, including a set of standard data related to ownership/control, environmental and geotechnical conditions, and infrastructure status.

Sites must also meet size, zoning and accessibility requirements.

“The AdvantageSite designation of Interstate Industrial Park is extremely important to our business recruitment efforts,” said Ellen McNair, Montgomery Area Chamber of Commerce senior vice president of corporate development. “This designation proves to our clients that this site is ready for any prospective industry and that we are able to meet short project timeframes.”

“We’re very pleased to be able to announce the designation of Interstate Industrial Park as an AdvantageSite and applaud Montgomery’s economic development team for their commitment to excellence,” said Greg Knighton, Economic Development Partnership of Alabama vice president and director of business information.

“The AdvantageSite program and the growing list of designated sites are beginning to gain some very positive exposure. One company recently cited the program as a positive factor in its decision to locate in Alabama. We’re convinced that the program will aid in bringing positive results for other sites, including Interstate Industrial Park.”

The AdvantageSite program is jointly sponsored by the Alabama Development Office, Alabama Gas Corporation, Alabama Power Company, EDPA, the North Alabama Industrial Development Association and PowerSouth Energy Cooperative.

The voluntary industrial site preparedness program was created in order to make the state more competitive for companies considering a location in Alabama.
